

Scholarship Essay

Global Korean Scholarship program

Growing up in the picturesque northeastern state of India, Assam, I had my share of nature's bounty; both for the eye candy exotica and the fabled teachings. My state is known for the brahmaputra river basin and kaziranga national park, home to the famous one horned rhino. I am Jilly Ruth Doley, daughter of an exemplary woman and pride of a hard working man who ensured that all his three kids receive ample resources and education to stand tall amongst the rest of the world.

My close knit family may not be as privileged as the high income ones, but our resilience, intellect and the sheer support for each other has nurtured us to be responsible, intelligible beings. My elder brother is now a successful working professional and my elder sister has recently concluded her chemical engineering.

Being the youngest, I have admittedly enjoyed the pampering and guidance whilst breaking stereotypes of a middle class Assamese society: foraging forests for nature's conservation and excelling at the game of basketball. My ambitions are motivated to come true to the nourishing and blessings of my family and excel superlatively in my career. To be able to contribute at a nobel international body like the United Nations. To this rationale of ensuing brilliant learning events in my life, with vehemence, I aspire to win the coveted slot in the Global Korean Scholarship Program. For most fellow applicants it may be a reward, a validation or one of many options, but to me it remains the lone chance of exercising my right to top quality education and to participate in the phenomena of a fast-shrinking, communicative world in a worriless manner.

I am a literature and culture enthusiast. My recently concluded bachelors [BA-Eng (H) - 2017 - 2020] in the discipline of English language revealed expansively about the classical and contemporary societal values, the progression of civility and in particular the evolution of feminism and nationalism. It is my hankering to delve deeper into my academic choices that led me to learn profusely about international cultures and global commitments in the parlance of diplomacy and common welfare. Being a consistently performing school student, I concluded my senior secondary school at Concept Junior College in 2017, learning extensively about language and social studies and now I yearn to learn more. A merit driven study in South Korea is a life-time opportunity for me to contribute profusely to the cause of her culture, economy and strategic knowledge exchanges with my home country, India. I am tremendously driven to uphold the luminous legacy of both great cultures and to deliver excellent outputs from the proposed privilege of GKS; to which my commitment is sincere.

I request you to allow me this opportunity to venture beyond my economic means and initiate a sacred learning ritual; to establish my career in the realm of international culture & relations and global good.

Sincerely
