Why Global Business Management

To specialize in the domain of Global Business Management is a logical progression of my education as I have already gained rudimentary knowledge and want to build up on it through the PG Certificate program. While studying my Bachelors in Business Administration, although I indulged avidly in the theory and practical knowledge of Business Management and Marketing, however, the studies were largely based in the context of domestic Indian consumers and businesses. Studying Global Business Management will build up my organic knowledge and simultaneously equip with Business skills from an international point of view.

I have developed a reasonable skill set through extensive project work ensuring important learning outcomes in entrepreneurship development, services and product marketing. Throughout my school and collegial education, I have liberally participated in extempore and debate contests receiving multiple accolades. The success received imbued confidence in me regarding my oration skills and further drew me to choose professions where interpersonal skills and dexterity in human interaction is a pre requisite. Post completing my Master's, I consciously chose to work in the HR department for further improving my communication skills and to get a holistic purview of workforce management. I am cautiously mindful of establishing a career in neo-modern marketing management; to the milieu of creative outreach programs and marketing advertisement verticals as I am certain that my communicative abilities will drive good results while interacting with clients, conducting market surveys and primarily in marketing.
